We cover livestock events from Calgary to Kansas City, and from Chicago to Denver. This enables our field staff to keep a daily tab on the livestock industry for more than 84,000 subscribers in the North Plains area.

We travel well over 100,000 miles each year covering all of the major livestock sales and assisting North Plains cattlemen in merchandising their livestock.

This daily updated information is available to you. If you have a question on the livestock business call Spence or Frank. Our total staff is ready to assist you with your livestock program.

The Simmental Story

The Simmental breed originated in Simme Valley, Switzerland. While the breed is very old, it was not introduced into North America until 1967.

The Simmental was first developed as a dual-purpose breed. They are rugged, sound cattle, combining meat and milking ability. They are generally red and white spotted, although some are relatively solid in color. Mature bulls average about 2,300 to 2,400 pounds and cows about 1,600 to 1,700 pounds.

Size and weight gains of F1 Simmental crossbreds in North America have been considerably in excess of most of the straightbred domestic cattle with which they have been compared. This indicates that the breed is contributing increased growth, other than evidenced by heterosis alone. The milk production of F1 females is showing improvement over domestic beef breed levels.

ORIGIN AND HISTORY

The breed goes back to an ancient Alpine strain and was first described under its present name in 1859. The first breed congress was held in 1866. In recent years, the breed has been exported from its home in southeastern France and is now found in Italy, North Africa and North America.

TARANTAISE BREED CHARACTERISTICS

*Color — Solid, wheat colored, ranging from light cherry to dark blond. All body orifices have black pigmentation.

*Size — Bulls average approximately 1,800 pounds, and cows approximately 1,150 pounds.

The Tarantaise have the ability to adapt to a wide range of environments, exhibit fertility, calving ease, growth, efficiency, and milking ability. They are a breed very well suited to cross-breeding programs, particularly where heifers are involved. It is a breed on the go.

SALE MANAGER'S COMMENTS

I am indeed very proud to again be working with the South Dakota Limousin Association on their Red Carpet Sale. Last year, the Red Carpet Sale's first at the Sioux Empire Show, it was felt that the sale offering included the best selection of Limousin ever offered in South Dakota. This year, you will be pleased to find a set of cattle assembled in Sioux Falls that will equal the high quality and superior performance of last year's offering. The name "Red Carpet Sale," is certainly befitting the cattle being offered as well as the opportunity awaiting you in this consignment.

As sale manager for the Red Carpet Sale, I had the pleasure to select these 60 lots from those nominated, and can personally attest to their excellence. The South Dakota Limousin breeders are to be commended for their willingness to throw open the gates and allow us to select their very best for this tremendous offering.

South Dakota is No. 1 in Limousin, both in the number of Limousin cattle recorded with the North American Limousin cattle in North America. The very best Limousin breeding herds can be found in South Dakota. The great Limousin herds you will find elsewhere in the country were most likely purchased in South Dakota.

As you study the performance records, the pedigrees, and the individuals themselves, you'll appreciate the outstanding cattle in this offering. Buy with confidence — you are buying the best of the breed at the Red Carpet Sale.

Sincerely,
Dean Jacobs

WHAT LIMOUSIN HAVE TO OFFER

FOR THE AMERICAN BEEF PRODUCER . . .

There is an obvious reason why Limousin has been coined "The Carcass Breed" . . . because that's what the beef industry is about, carcass, and that's also what Limousin do best, produce a carcass second to none. Unfortunately, when a breed has one truly outstanding characteristic, some of the additional attributes this breed can offer the American cattleman are overlooked. Following are the principal advantages of Limousin:

- A high record of FERTILITY and the most efficient production history of all the French Breeds.
- Easy calving record — smaller average birth weights than most of the European breeds now offered in the U.S.
- High percentage calf crops — total breed average of 93% calves weaned for every 100 cows pasture exposed to bulls.
- Outstanding mothering ability and excellent record of milk production — French tests show 4.8% to 5.3% butterfat.
- Efficient cow size to produce big, growthy, meat-type calves with a lower annual maintenance cost. Bred for centuries to rustle their own feed and thrive on low-cost roughage.
- Longevity — Limousin cows show a long life span, with continuous calf production records. Many French herds have cows that are still in the herd at 15 to as high as 17 years of age, with a production record of as many as 10 to 15 calves.
- Fast, efficient growth rate from birth to slaughter — French bulls consistently grow out from 1,000 to 1,100 lbs. at one year of age on a grass and high roughage ration.
- U.S. and Canadian tests show efficient, low-cost feedlot gains on Limousin crossbreds, with feed-conversion factors as much as 25% better than conventional feeder cattle.
- Practical reserach reports show Limousin-cross carcasses have outstanding quality with greatly improved cutability and excellent red meat yield per day of age.
- Larger average ribeye area in the Limousin carcass assures maximum yield of high priced cuts and more profitable cut-out for the retailer and the processor.

— All of this adds up to a more profitable total cow herd with a reasonable yearly maintenance cost and fewer production problems!
